

FOOD & DRINK

Great places to savour along the Great West Way.

The Great West Way roams between London and Bristol, passing through some of England's most idyllic countryside and weaving a pathway from ancient market town to quaint village, thatched pub to beamed tearoom.

This slice of quintessential England is home to some of the country's best agricultural land, and with that comes excellent local produce, from fresh fruits and vegetables to fine wines. Farms rear animals and nurture crops, breweries experiment with craft beers, and kitchen gardens cultivate seasonal veggies. While pubs and restaurants select the best of it all for their menus, and family-run tea rooms whip up fresh cakes daily.

All of this adds up to one very tasty journey along the Great West Way. From farm shops, international cuisine, Michelin starred restaurants, tours, tastings, cookery schools and more take a look at our pick of the best places to visit.

THE NEWBURY
137 BARTHOLOMEW ST, NEWBURY RG14 5HB, 01635 49000 • thenewburypub.co.uk
The Newbury offers an exciting British à la carte menu and fantastic atmosphere. It is also the home of 137 Gin, where multi-award winning Lumber's Bartholomew Gin is distilled.

Landlord Pete's vision is at the heart of The Newbury and 137, from the distinctive branding to the stunning décor.

BEER & BREWERIES

Beer has been brewed in England for thousands of years – a fermented mixture of water, hops, malt and yeast. Although beer itself wasn't invented here, the English have developed their own unique style which is quite unlike what you'll find in other countries.

This is called 'real ale', a name first coined in the 1970s by CAMRA (the Campaign for Real Ale) to describe traditional draught cask beers that contain live yeast. Real ale is a living product, the yeast continuing to ferment until the beer is served – generally from a traditional hand-pump mounted on the bar. This gives real ale bags of flavour and a natural light carbonation that is very different from the more ubiquitous lagers and highly carbonated beers produced by the large international brewers.

You'll find real ale in almost all pubs along the Great West Way. It comes in numerous varieties including IPA (India Pale Ale), bitter, mild, stout, porter and golden. Flavours can vary significantly within varieties, so don't be afraid to request a taste first – and always ask for what's local.

These are some of the best places to drink real ale along the Great West Way.

rct.uk/visit/windsor-castle
Royal Collection Trust is investing in a series of projects at Windsor Castle that will transform the experience of visiting this royal residence. Work is underway to evoke the medieval Undercroft into the Castle's first permanent café. One of the few remaining parts of Edward III's major renovations in the 1360s, the Undercroft is among the oldest surviving parts of the Castle and during the 14th century served as the principal chapel and larder.

DID YOU KNOW?

The chocolate bar was invented in Bristol? In 1847 Joseph Fry worked out how to make a paste from cocoa, sugar and cocoa powder that could be moulded into a bar. JS Fry & Sons had their factory in Union Street and produced their most famous chocolate bar, the Fry's Chocolate Cream, in 1866 as well as the UK's first chocolate Easter egg in 1873.

12

DID YOU KNOW?

It takes 36 pieces of fruit to make one gallon of apple cider.

DID YOU KNOW?

The Wiltshire cure is a traditional English technique for curing bacon and ham? The meat is soaked in brine for several days, making it moist and giving it a succulent texture. The technique was developed in Calne in Wiltshire by the Harris family in the 18th century. Visit Buttle Farm (D4) to buy Wiltshire cured ham fresh from the farm.
